* `www.creativecow.com/` * `` * `` * `www.tutorialspoint.com/photoshop.php` * `` # Using Photoshop to Make Artwork The examples in this section explore how Photoshop tools can be used for making artworks. In this section, I will show you how to make some images look, well, more like art. The techniques here are covered in full detail in the online tutorials at `www.adobetutorials.com`. ## Simple Light Effects This first example project shows you how to replicate what you may have seen in a magazine or on television. I will show you how to create a series of complicated effects with a single simple image. The _simple light effects_ image will be used later in this book to show various techniques. This chapter is split into two parts. The first part, "Simple Light Effects:," explores how to combine layers together, duplicate, rotate, and add to the basic image. The second part, "Advanced Lighting Effects:," covers Photoshop's effects tools and looks at other ways to add a little sparkle or shine to images.

Creating HDR images in Photoshop Elements The term 'High Dynamic Range' (HDR) describes the range of brightness between the brightest and darkest parts of an image. The more dynamic range, the better it looks, and the better the results for HDR. The highlight and shadow areas of the image are often blown up due to an excessively bright or dark photo. By merging together the bright and dark areas, we get a new image with more detail. HDR images are made using multiple images, usually 3. They are used to create scenes with extreme lighting conditions. The HDR image is created by merging the RAW images of the three images into one. We can use the 'Smart Merge' HDR function in Photoshop Elements. The function works with JPEG and RAW files. If you are using a RAW file, you must first convert it into a JPEG file. The title of the files used are to be merged into the final HDR image. You can rename the files using the file properties. Procedure 1. Make three copies of your RAW image and save them as JPEG files. Make sure the size of the images are exactly the same. 2. Merge all three images into a single file and save it as a JPEG file. 3. Save the HDR image as a JPEG file and you are finished. You can now use it in a photoshop project or other high-end software. Step by Step 1. Open your first image in Photoshop Elements and use the Filter>Gradient Menu and choose the 'BI 388ed7b0c7

The agricultural sector in Ethiopia is one of the most dynamic sectors of the economy and represents a growth engine for the country. The sector employs more than 12 million people and generates gross value added (GVA) of US$8 billion in 2014. The macroeconomic situation in the sector is characterized by low growth, inflation and high levels of non-performing loans (NPL). To address these issues, the Ministry of Agriculture, Water and Natural Resources (MoAWNR) has established a new mandate, in its 2018/2019 annual budget, to undertake ambitious reform. The reform targets include domestic legislation changes and international best practices, in order to strengthen the support mechanism and improve the access of the agri-food sector to credit markets. The assumption of this study is that the reform agenda from the MoAWNR is successful and that the agriculture sector starts a new growth phase. Therefore, a principal-agent model is used for the government-farmer relations. The goal is to determine the farmer's reaction to government reforms and establish what characteristics encourage farmers to participate in the reform agenda. The objective of this paper is to develop a decomposition model for the panel of sub-Saharan countries of the African Union, in which agriculture and related services are included in the scope of analysis. For doing so, it is assumed that agriculture is the most important sector of the economy. The primary purpose of the study is to evaluate the impact of the lower subsidies in the long run. The study contributes to the literature by developing new econometric approaches to analyze the panel and confirms the importance of the more innovative technologies for the dynamic strategy for the region. The Ethiopian construction sector is the second-largest sector in the Ethiopian economy. The sector has grown consistently over the past few decades, but the current aggregate construction expenditure level is around 15 percent of GDP. According to the recent World Bank survey, annual GDP growth is expected to be about 4 percent over the next decade. This paper examines the impact of interest rates on the demand for loans and the household saving behavior in Ethiopia. It is found that a 10 percent decline in the rate does not affect the demand for loans or savings. On the other hand, a 10 percent increase in the rate will increase the demand for bank loans and reduce the saving behavior by households in Ethiopia. A steady growth rate of agriculture sector is an important ingredient for the achievement of food security in Ethiopia. The Ethiopian government has always emphasized the policy of agricultural development as the main pillar to support the economic growth.

Q: using XSDs to validate a SOAP message in Java I am using the Oracle-XSD-JAXWS and now I'm having problem with some of the XSDs. The problem is I am now only allowed to implement a default method. I think the problem is, that the method return an arraylist and by the XSD my method is not allowed to return a generic type. Example: @XmlElement(name = "UserInfo")

@XmlJavaTypeAdapter(GsonAdapter.class) public List getUserInfo(String userId); According to my teacher's instruction I am only allowed to use the default method. He did not give me access to the XSD. Could anyone help me out how I can fix this problem? A: I think the problem is, that the method return an arraylist and by the XSD my method is not allowed to return a generic type What he's telling you is that you don't need to return a list of UserInfo. You can just return an arbitrary object that can be mapped to UserInfo in the client. So the test in the client should look like this: import javax.xml.bind.JAXBElement; import javax.xml.bind.annotation.XmlElement; public class User { @XmlElement(name="UserId") private String id; public String getId() { return id; } public void setId(String id) { this.id = id; } public JAXBElement getUserInfo(String userId) { return new JAXBElement (User.class, "UserInfo", User.class, userId); } } public class Customer { @XmlElement(name="CustomerId") private String id; public String getId() { return id; } public void
